Modern HR platform for modern business

HR leaders today are tech-savvy professionals and understand that the right HR tech stack can help them power through these changing times. Finding the right tech stack is where this guide comes in.

It's no secret that employees expect to feel like a genuine part of the company. HR pros know this and are taking the steps to find the right HR tech that keeps employees in the loop—across the globe and from home—with culture, communications, and peer engagement.

At the same time, the platform needs to be flexible enough to change a process overnight. After all, success today depends on how quickly a company adapts to changing scenarios.

Some companies choose an “all-in-one” HR solution that includes everything (ATS, payroll, T&M, etc.) for their daily/weekly HR processes. The downside? These solutions are designed to support HR in their daily tasks and tend to overlook the culture and engagement that employees crave.

The good news is that modern HR tech (HRIS) can offer a solution for everyone in the organization. But not all solutions are built alike.

Use this guide to determine the primary drivers for your HRIS and keep them in mind while going through the sections and questions. Start comparing UKG vs. HiBob now.

“ We love Bob’s flexibility. The other HR systems tell you how to manage performance. That was not our objective. We wanted to create and develop skills for leaders and allow employees to have a voice and a dialogue with their managers. Bob gave us the flexibility to do that.”

Sonia Clark

Interim VP of Human Resources at Elation Health
